

2020 Report of the United Nations Secretary-General on sport as enabler for development and peace.

Peace and Sport contribution

Introduction

Placed under the High Patronage of H.S.H. Prince Albert II of Monaco and supported by the Principality's Government, Peace and Sport is an international, neutral and independent organization based in Monaco, which promotes peace using the power of sport. It was created in 2007 by Joël Bouzou, Olympic medallist and World Champion of Modern Pentathlon. Didier Drogba, Champion for Peace, became Vice-President in 2019.

Peace and Sport promotes the building of peaceful, inclusive and equitable communities through the power of sport. The Organization raises awareness, brings together and develops partnerships between the worlds of peace (NGOs, UN Agencies, International Organizations, Academics), sport (Olympic Family, International Sport Federations, National Olympic Committees, Athletes) and politics. It aims to implement field programs and ensure their sustainability, maximizing the use of sport for development and peace and leading social transformation in every area of the world affected by poverty or social instability.

Peace and Sport is founded on four key pillars: Mobilizing, Connecting, Demonstrating and Advocating. The organization takes concrete action to prove the federating, educational and social impact of sport through sport diplomacy initiatives and field programs with the support of our Champions for Peace club.

Peace and Sport is committed to aligning its programs and activities with the UN 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and promotes improved international coherence and collaboration in placing sport at the service of humanity, as a powerful enabler of sustainable development.

This currently involves a wide range of initiatives, all contributing to the United Nations recommendations and international overarching standards-setting frameworks, aimed at achieving the 2030 Agenda through advocacy, data collection, capacity building, promotion and events.

Title: Mobilizing sports bodies and aligning their actions for Sport for Development and Peace

Sport is the tool through which Peace and Sport’s vision will be accomplished. It is therefore of the uttermost importance that the world governing bodies of sport and sports organizations are informed, made aware and advised about using sport for development and peace.

Since its creation in 2007, Peace and Sport has carried out constant advocacy to mobilize sports organizations at all levels in peace and development matters. This active strategy has been aimed at International and National Sport Federations, NOCs, Sports Clubs and other Sport bodies, in order to raise their awareness about the use of sport as a powerful contributor to the implementation of the UN 2030 Agenda.

Peace and Sport helps sport stakeholders to increase their knowledge about the use of sport for peace in order to get them more involved in the peace through sport movement.

The program is implemented within Zaatari refugee camp, located close to Jordan’s northern border with Syria and home to nearly 80,000 refugees.

The program aims to provide holistic development opportunities to the refugees through the practice of sport, and to address three main social issues identified in cooperation with UNHCR:

- Marginalization and disengagement
- Psychosocial distress (aggressiveness, lack of self-confidence...)
- Sense of exclusion/isolation and rejection by the host society

Mechanism for monitoring and evaluating implementation:	What are the mechanisms for monitoring and evaluating the implementation, outcomes and impact of the initiative? Monitoring: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- Peace and Sport has appointed a Jordanian Coordinator for monitoring the daily activities.</li> <li>- Peace and Sport HQ staff visit the camp 3 times a year.</li> <li>- The coaches are in charge of daily reporting through the Peace and Sport Methodology App. The monthly results are then gathered and sent to Peace and Sport (which allows Peace and Sport to have regular feedback on the situation, and therefore to continuously evolve, adapt and improve the program);</li> <li>- Each International Federation involved is responsible too for its coaches on the technical monitoring of their sport;</li> </ul> What are the specific monitoring and evaluation tools involved? <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- The overall monitoring is applied through a process established in cooperation with BLUMONT.</li> <li>- Most of the monitoring is done through the Peace and Sport by My Coach App;</li> </ul> Evaluation: the refugee coaches focus their training sessions on transmitting the following values: Team Spirit, Acceptance and Dialogue. The results will be evaluated through the Peace and Sport methodology via a specific application.
Challenges/Lessons learned	What have been/were the main challenges to implementation? <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Time-consuming procedures that involve a lot of bureaucracy for implementing activities into camps.</li> <li>• Difficulties on implementing a humanitarian program in a country where the organization is not officially registered: this requires the presence of an implementation partner;</li> <li>• Working hours to access the camp are very limited for NGO staff</li> </ul>

Title: Digitization of Peace and Sport’s Methodology to provide schools and educators in the world with evolutive, annual sports programs devoted to peace.

The Peace and Sport Methodology uses sport to promote positive values such as self-esteem, dialogue and respect, to encourage beneficiaries to collaborate with others. It includes the “Sport Simple Solutions” which were highlighted in the 2018 UN Secretary General’s Report about sport for development and Peace.

To reinforce and measure the impact of its programs, in 2019 Peace and Sport launched the “Peace and Sport x MyCoach application”, in which the Methodology has been structured from demo exercises to an evolutive, annual sports programs. The goal of this digitization is to enable educators to transmit Peace and Sport Methodology to local populations all around the world.

The application offers an innovative way to promote peace through evolutive, annual sports programs, in order to create ideal conditions for living together “better” through sport. The Monitoring procedure is a continuous process, integrated as an essential component of the Methodology.

For the first time, sport activities are associated with positive values essential to the building of peace, in “Peace and Sport’s three cycles” program:

- Work on yourself,

Title: The International Day of Sport for Development and Peace celebration to prove the positive impact of sport as an enabler to achieve the 2030 Agenda

Since the declaration of April 6th as the International Day of Sport for Development and Peace (IDSDP) by the United Nations in 2013, Peace and Sport has been mobilizing the world peace-through-sport community to commemorate this day by taking concrete actions and sharing sport for good initiatives on our website www.april6.org. Sports organizations, top-level athletes, NGOs, International Organizations and Governments are invited to take effective public awareness actions on April 6th and to share their SDP programs all year long.

From 2013 until 2019, the April6.org platform registered 3,645 SDP initiatives.

April6.org serves as a tool for data collection; dissemination of good SDP practices and resources; and promotion of Kazan Action Plan recommendations including the classification of peace-through-sport initiatives according to this international nomenclature. As the largest platform to celebrate and share sport for good initiatives on April6, this digital tool helps to legitimize and reinforce the contribution of sport to achieve the 2030 Agenda.

Additionally, Peace and Sport launched the #WhiteCard Campaign in 2014 for April 6th. Since then, holding up a #WhiteCard has become an international symbol of peace and commitment to act for a better world through sport. A reference to the yellow and red cards in the sporting world, this yearly digital campaign invites us not to punish, but to create positive change through sport. The #WhiteCard campaign reaches new heights every year, generating awareness of IDSDP among the general public international as well as national sports federations, international institutions, governments, and athletes.
